2nd Nature is First to Receive LEED Platinum Certification

Nashua's 2nd Nature Academy was recently honored on September 14th with a Lean & Green Award by Business NH Magazine. The award was garnered in the Green Building category and relates to the newly built facility. The facility is the first commercial building in New Hampshire to receive Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) Platinum certification.

LEED Platinum certification is a major accomplishment for the Nashua school who according to co-owner Deborah Gleeson, "...is a great teaching tool." The school uses solar and geothermal heating and cooling systems for 60% of its energy needs and purchases wind power credits to offset the rest of its consumption. No fossil fuels are used to heat or cool the building and they save 68% compared to traditional energy sources. The materials in the building are from sustainable sources, such as floors made from recycled cork flooring and doors made from sustainably harvested poplar trees.
